Modern Farming

GEESE EASY TO RAISE.

Birds Are Not Subject to Disease and Thrive on Pasture.

Turkeys and chickens are more subject to disease than geese, and, besides, the geese are productive for many years, writes a correspondent of the Iowa Homestead. One rarely ever sees any ailment among a flock, and they will obtain most of their living from "green stuff" during the spring, summer and autumn. Then the feathers from the mature goose, which may be plucked about every six weeks during the warm months, are quite an item. The big, soft feather beds and pillows which may be seen in every farmer's home where there is a flock of geese kept speak for themselves. Besides there is a good market for all surplus feathers and also for the fat goose, which is purchased for many Christmas, New Year and other special dinners.

The young geese, as well as the old ones, will thrive when kept on green pasture. The eggs which they produce are large and rich and find a ready market. Hence the farmer who keeps a large flock of geese will make a good profit. Geese will begin to lay the last of February or the first of March. A neighbor who still raises geese never allows the mother geese to incubate her own eggs. The eggs are set under chicken hens, allowing six or eight eggs to each hen, according to the size of the hen. After hatching the young goslings are not fed anything for a day and night, but are allowed to remain quietly in the nest. After this water is placed before them, and they are fed breadcrumbs mixed with charcoal which has been pulverized. Young goslings will eat green stuff almost from the beginning, as grass is their natural food; grass and other vegetation is chopped up finely and fed to them plentifully. The goslings are kept sheltered from rain and cold until they are strong enough to overcome these evils. When they are fully feathered they, with the mother hen, are placed inside the pasture, where they will need but little more attention except to provide them with plenty of water.

Don't Make Curiosity Telephone Calls

"Because 2,000 life curiosity seekers in Birmingham asked 'Central' where the line was, an emergency call for an ambulance was held up for nearly 15 minutes and this delay resulted in the death of a young man. Physicians say that had the ambulance been secured at once—the life might have been saved."
—Elmore Advertiser.

It is beyond the bounds of possibility to answer promptly the mass of curiosity telephone calls that threaten to swamp our exchanges every time there is a large fire.

Calls for physicians, the ambulance or the police, held up at such times might result in the loss of human life.

For your protection, as well as for the protection of your neighbors, we ask you not to call the telephone operator merely out of curiosity. After all, she has no more information than you have.
